

ADAM THOMAS

Adam Thomas grew up in a small Northwest Missouri Community where his father was a farmer and his mother was a schoolteacher. He attended the University of Missouri studying Agricultural Systems Management and Agricultural Economics.

Thomas began his career with a large international company managing terminal elevators that supplied the export operations in New Orleans. After 5 years there, he moved into merchandising and began his career with SEMO Milling as their Grain Procurement Manager.

This developed into the Commercial Director position that he is currently serving in. In that role, he has helped start a logistics company to support their co-product business. He currently oversees the commercial operations surrounding co-products, logistics, new product development and food grade ingredients. He has been with SEMO Milling for 12 years. 3 years ago, he founded Tiger Soy with the intent of supplying high quality soy flour for food aid operations.