Only 1 question was received.

Question: We are looking into bidding for the World Initiative for Soy in Human Health (WISHH) RFP and I wanted to check whether the contract for my office in Guatemala City, under my name, would qualify as sufficient licensing documentation. If not, could you kindly provide examples of other documentation that might be required?

Answer: Thank you for reaching out with your question regarding what would qualify as proof of licensing. A copy of your office contract would suffice as would a copy or screenshot of any government document or website acknowledging your business is located in the country.
